ABOUT KERC

Since 2002, Kwayaciiwin has worked with First Nation communities in the Sioux Lookout area to help students succeed academically by providing culturally appropriate resources and materials, and by supporting schools in areas such as literacy, numeracy, data collection, technology, and governance.

As First Nations asserted control of education and began to operate their own schools, Kwayaciiwin was formed as response to supporting those schools and to address academic gaps. We work with local education authorities, chiefs and councils, education directors, principals, teachers, and classroom assistants to support student success.

Anishinine/Anishinaabe language and culture remain at the heart of Kwayaciiwin's work, rooted in the knowledge that students with a strong sense of identity and belonging will thrive academically and personally.

Services include coaching and mentoring of school staff, curriculum development, school success planning, learning assessments, student performance data collection, special education support, professional development, and assistance with information technology and management.

MISSION

Kwayaciiwin Education Resource Centre supports First Nations student success in partnership with our communities.

Is your school making a

YEARBOOK?

Kwayaciiwn Education Resource Centre (KERC) can print and publish it.

Please send your digital files (images and graphics or pre-designed pages) to gcosco@kerc.ca by no later than end of May.

Please ensure all pdfs or images are at a maximum resolution of 300 ppi (pixels/inch) and all files designed in MS word have a 0.5" white border around each page to ensure maximum printability and quality.

For further inquiries and questions about printing specs and requirements please contact KERC's in-house artists and graphic designers through gcosco@kerc.ca. Thank you.
